FEDERAL POLICIES COULD COST SASKATCHEWAN $111
BILLION BY 2035

Message from Premier Moe

on defending Saskatchewan's economic autonomy

While Saskatchewan secured constitutional authority over its natural resources in 1930, the application of that control has remained a point of contention between the provincial and federal governments over the years.

The situation has been exacerbated in recent years by the current federal government's continued interference in the province's jurisdiction over natural resources under the guise of federal environmental regulation.

If this continues it will have an extremely detrimental impact, costing Saskatchewan's economy $111 billion by 2035.

It is therefore time to defend and assert Saskatchewan's economic autonomy by "drawing the line:" taking a number of steps including the introduction of provincial legislation to clarify and protect Saskatchewan's constitutional rights.

Premier Says Provincial Government Will Defend Saskatchewan Economy, Families and Jobs

Premier Scott Moe said his government will take steps to protect Saskatchewan's families, businesses and jobs from destructive federal policies that could cost our province's economy $111 billion by 2035.

The Government of Saskatchewan released a paper entitled "Drawing the Line: Defending Saskatchewan's Economic Autonomy" which considers policy options in light of the current federal government intrusions into Saskatchewan's exclusive areas of jurisdiction under the Constitution.

Analysis by the Ministry of Finance indicates that nine different federal climate change policies are estimated to cost Saskatchewan's economy $111 billion between 2023 and 2035.

"The situation has been exacerbated in recent years by the current federal government's continued interference in the province's jurisdiction over natural resources under the guise of federal environmental regulation," Moe said. "It is time to defend and assert Saskatchewan's economic autonomy by 'drawing the line:' taking a number of steps including the introduction of provincial legislation to clarify and protect Saskatchewan's constitutional rights."

In a ruling earlier this year striking down one of those federal policies, The Impact Assessment Act, Alberta Chief Justice Catherine Fraser wrote: "Through this legislative scheme, Parliament has taken a wrecking ball to the constitutional rights of the citizens of Alberta and Saskatchewan and other provinces to have their natural resources developed for the benefit."

"This cannot continue," Moe said. "We have so much potential in Saskatchewan to grow and prosper. A strong Saskatchewan means a strong Canada, but we cannot allow continued federal intrusion into our exclusive constitutional right to develop our natural resources and grow our economy. We will defend and protect Saskatchewan jobs and our economic future."

BREAST CANCER MONTH

It's October, which means it's breast cancer awareness month 2022 – time to raise awareness for breast cancer!

Breast cancer is the most common cancer in women and the second leading cause of cancer death in women.

According to research, about 12.4 percent or 1 in 8 women in the United States will develop breast cancer in their lifetime.

While the survival rates for breast cancer are high, it's still important to catch it early and get treated as soon as possible.

There are many ways you can get involved in breast cancer awareness month. You can raise money for research, support those affected by the disease, spread the word about the importance of early detection, etc. But no matter how you choose to get involved, you can help make a difference in the fight against breast cancer.

What is breast cancer awareness month?

Breast cancer awareness month is an annual campaign to increase breast cancer awareness. The campaign runs throughout October and aims to promote early detection and treatment of the condition.

It also helps highlight all the amazing progress made in the fight against this disease. From new treatments to early detection, so there's a lot to be hopeful about.

How to be a part of Breast Cancer Awareness Month 2022

- Support those affected by the disease
- Spread the word about the importance of early detection
- Donate to breast cancer research or organization
- Wear pink throughout the month to show your support
- Attend a local charity event or breast cancer walk
- Encourage loved ones to get screened for breast cancer
- Talk about your personal experience with breast cancer, whether it's yourself, a friend, or a family member
- Raise awareness of the signs and symptoms of breast cancer
- Educate yourself and others about breast cancer risks, symptoms, and treatment options

SASKATCHEWAN DECLARES FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Have a home fire escape plan for everyone in your home. Some people may need help waking up or getting outside. Plan for your abilities!
Fire won't wait. Plan your escape at fpw.org.

Saskatchewan Fire Commissioner Marlo Pritchard, along with Saskatchewan Public Safety Agency (SPSA) Minister Christine Tell, officially proclaimed Fire Prevention Week, which runs from October 9 to 15.

This year marks the 100th anniversary of Fire Prevention Week which makes it the longest running public health and safety observance on record.

The SPSA is recognizing this important milestone with some new activities aimed at preventing fires in Saskatchewan.

- A poster contest for students in Grades four through eight runs until October 28, 2022. Information about how to enter is available at saskpublicsafety.ca. The winning entries will be showcased on the SPSA's website and Facebook page.

- A public event will be held in front of the Saskatchewan Legislative Building at 2 p.m. on October 12, 2022.

"When fires happen, Saskatchewan's professional and volunteer firefighters are ready to respond," Tell said. "When these brave individuals aren't putting their lives on the line to fight fires, they are training and promoting fire prevention in their communities."

The theme for Fire Prevention Week 2022 is "Fire Won't Wait. Plan Your Escape."

"Everyone should have a plan to escape their home in case of a fire, and that plan should be well practiced," Pritchard said. "You and your loved ones might only have a couple minutes to escape. It is crucial to know what to do during a fire."

Escape plans should include everyone in the household. Consider individuals who may need help to escape, small children and even pets, and identify multiple escape routes when possible. Download the Home Escape Plan Fact Sheet for more information.

PHASED TRANSITION OF EMERGENCY SHELTER SPACES IN SASKATOON

The Ministry of Social Services is ensuring the number of emergency shelter spaces in Saskatoon are maintained as it transitions government-funded services from Lighthouse Supported Living.

In October, 30 of the 61 emergency shelter spaces at Lighthouse are transitioning to Salvation Army through an existing contract with the Ministry of Social Services. Discussions with other community partners are underway to plan for the transition of the remaining 31 emergency shelter spaces in the coming weeks.

"A gradual reduction of new referrals to Lighthouse will occur as emergency shelter spaces become operational and with client needs in mind," Social Services Minister Gene Makowsky said. "Our shared focus continues to be to support clients and carefully plan the transition so there is no disruption in service."

"The Salvation Army is pleased to partner with the Ministry of Social Services to increase our short-term emergency shelter spaces in the City of Saskatoon," Salvation Army Major Mike Hoeft said. "We look forward to the ongoing work to address the complex issue of homelessness as we work together to find a long-term solution."

In June 2022, the province announced it would transition government-funded services from Lighthouse Supported Living to other community partners, following challenges with governance, management and financial controls, and safety concerns due to the concentration of services in one location.

Details on upcoming phases of the transition will be communicated as plans are finalized.

I GUESS IT IS TIME FOR US TO JOIN THE ZOO ANIMALS AS WE ALL PREPARE FOR COOLER TEMPERATURES!

Over the next several weeks, visitors to the Saskatoon Forestry Farm Park & Zoo (Zoo) will start to see the Zoo animals preparing for the cooler winter temperatures ahead. Many species including the snow leopard, lynx, bobcats, bison and caribou thrive in cooler temperatures thanks to some very cool natural adaptations.

“Caribou are well adapted to life in cold climates,” says Jeff Mitchell, Zoo Manager. “The herd at the Zoo is already working on developing their dense undercoat made up of ultra-fine fur and a longer overcoat of hollow guard hairs that will keep them warm throughout the winter. Caribou also have large, sharp hooves that act like snowshoes allowing them to walk on top of the snow.”

Other animals like the grizzly bears and prairie dogs, are getting ready to sleep away the cold winter days.

“Mistaya and Koda have started making their beds so to speak,” says Mitchell. “You might see the bears combing through the extra straw and leaves the zookeepers have placed throughout their habitat. Mistaya and Koda like to carefully select each leaf and piece of straw, only taking the best of the best back to their den to make their bed.”

Dingoes Maple and Euci will soon be off-exhibit as the cool weather settles in. While the dingoes love to play in the snow for brief periods of time, they will be spending most of their time in their indoor habitat in favour of warmer temperatures.

A reminder to purchase your 2023 Zoo Season Passes before December 31, 2022 to receive 2022 rates. Zoo Season Passes are available for purchase at the Saskatoon Forestry Farm Park & Zoo or any Leisure Centre.

WORLD RESTART A HEART DAY OCTOBER 16

/AED rates. With your support, we will be difference-makers together!

We know that most cardiac arrests occur outside the hospital.

We know that the survival rate from out-of-hospital cardiac arrest is too low.

We know that bystanders are the difference-makers.

Let's work together to create more difference-makers.

What is World Restart a Heart Day?

Last year, instructors, students, hospitals, schools, CPR organizations and more joined forces across the globe to show 206 million people and train 5.4+ million in hands-only CPR as part of World Restart a Heart Day.

After last year's great successes, the world is coming together again on October 16 to celebrate World Restart a Heart day, an opportunity to emphasize the importance of bystander CPR & AED use.

And we invite you to be part of this global campaign!

Join Heart & Stroke and our global partners in sharing a crucial message: Anyone can do basic CPR and use an AED, and that if done within the first minutes of a cardiac arrest, it can double someone's chances of survival.
